Don't remember the 2015 rubella epidemic?

That's because there wasn't one.

Rubella infection during pregnancy was the leading cause of vaccine-preventable birth defects. In 1964, this led to 11,000 stillbirths and the death of 2,100 newborns in the US. Since the rubella vaccine, cases have dropped over 99%. Are you up to date?
