Panthers are ready to pounce

Saratoga with seven seniors is looking forward to the season

by Mike Armstrong

The Saratoga Panther High School basketball team is one head coach Jason Williams feels very good about as the season starts. Last year in the state tournament, the Panthers were defeated by the eventual state champions, Upton. Williams said this year his team has a strong roster of seniors who know each other well and are ready to see how far they can go. “We have a lot of good leadership on the team because we are senior heavy,” Williams said. “They know our program and they know our culture. They its time to put in the work and work hard.” Williams feels the team is going to do well not only because there are players who are excellent athletes, but also good people. “They are a great group to coach,” Williams said. “These boys have been a source of pride over the past few years.” Williams is a position probably every coach wishes to be in. “It is like I told them in practice, we have seven seniors and two juniors,” Williams observed. “We have nine guys that almost any team in 1 A would start, having five to narrow it down to five is a good problem for a coach to have to be this deep.” Williams said the Panthers are ready to go. “We are grateful to be able to start our season in front of our fans,” Williams said. “It is exciting and fun and the team is really looking forward to it.

Miners ready to start season

More players are on the team this year

by Mike Armstrong
The Hanna, Elk Mountain, Medicine Bow (HEM) High School Miners boys basketball team is still not the biggest considering rivals, but compared to last year when the team had only six players, head coach Cliff Jones is glad to see the team increase in size. “I am excited to see an increase in numbers this season,” Jones said. “So far, it’s been a fun group to work with and we are looking forward to pushing ourselves to grow and improve as the season progresses.” Jones knows with eight players the team will require the boys to be ready to play hard. He also knows the team will have an opportunity to learn about themselves fairly early in the season as they participate in a tournament this coming weekend. “We play some really good teams early in the season at our first couple of tournaments,”

Jones said, “So hopefully we will have a better understanding of where we are as we head into the holiday break.” The Miners proved last year, they were a team who played hard and with a lot of heart. It is their heart Jones is proud of from his players, no matter the win/loss record, and he is hopeful this year will enable the team to have a good season. The team will host a tournament this weekend.

Lady Miners are coming together

HEM girls basketball are gelling as a team as season begins

by Mike Armstrong
The Hanna, Elk Mountain, Medicine Bow (HEM) High

School Lady Miners girls basketball team is coming together according to head coach Jackie Jones. “This group of young ladies are ready to work and be a team,” Jones said. “ We all know we have some rust to polish up and some skills to refine, but the way the team is coming together as a cohesive unit already is so encouraging.”

Last year the team was smaller than this year and the team did not come together as strongly as the season went on. This is unusual for a Jones coached team, so the coach is happy to see the team coming together. “Our numbers are up with 13 girls coming out this season,” Jones said. “ That is a great morale booster for the program.

We are excited to start playing this weekend even though we won’t have all our players.” HEM will be hosting a basketball tournament this weekend.

LSRV looks to keep improving

The Rattlers look to do even better this season

by Mike Armstrong

The Little Snake River Valley (LSRV) High School Rattlers boys basketball team had a very good season when comparing it to the season before where the team went 1-15. Last year they made regionals and were a game away from making state.

Many of the players on the Rattler basketball team played on the state champion football team this year.

Head Coach Jack Cobb said he knows his boys are athletes but the two games are entirely different.

“Besides them being different games, we are probably a couple weeks behind other teams because after winning the football championship we took a week off to relax and recover a little bit, then Thanksgiving was on us,” Cobb said. “So that brings us back a little bit. Plus we are a young team.”

Cobb said there were some players from last year which would be missed.

“Besides the seniors we lost, there is a key player from that time not playing the year and we have had a few recent injuries that could also mean something to our season,” Cobb said. “The important thing is that I think our team wants to prove that we may be a school known for football, but we can be a team that is competitive in basketball and will improve each season. But very few schools dominate in both sports and that is because they are very different games being played.”

Cobb said he was proud the team went to regionals last year after missing going there for three years. This year he hopes to get to State.

“We are going to learn a lot about ourselves in the next couple weeks as we play some tough, tough teams in tournaments,” Cobb said. “Once we go through them, we will have learned a lot about ourselves and which players are going to step up.”

Lady Rattlers ready to take a bite

LSRV girls basketball are looking forward to the season

by Mike Armstrong

The Little Snake River Valley (LSRV) High School Lady Rattlers girls basketball team lost two seniors last year, but the team has seven players coming back with a lot of experience according to head coach Mark Gillies.

“The girls returning are coming off a solid season from last year and I am really excited to see what we are going to do this season,” Gillies said. “Our dynamic will change a little bit from last year, but we are experienced and I am looking forward to us going out and competing.”

Gillies feels the team has tremendous potential to do very well this season.

“This is my third year coaching the team. My first year was during COVID and that was not a great time for basketball,” Gillies said. “Last year I was able to interject a little bit of my coaching philosophy while still respecting what went on before and it worked. This year we will do a few more tweaks, but that is what coaches do.”

He said the players are unselfish and are coming together as a team.

“I think it is going to be exciting this season,” Gillies said. “I think we are going to have a very balanced attack. I think one night one player will be the high scorer and then the next night it will be another. By being balanced it makes it difficult for other teams to know who to cover as the season continues.”

The Lady Rattler coach admits having two returning all conference players gives the team a boost too.

“I think this is going to be a good season for us,” Gillies said.

Miner wrestling team looks to improve over last season
by Mike Armstrong
The wrestling Miner team at the Hanna, Elk

Mountain, Medicine Bow (HEM) High School is looking forward to this season according to head coach Robert Riddle.
"It is a promising season," Riddle said.

"There are several kids that are returners and several new wrestlers. The team is looking strong and well conditioned."
The Miners is not a large team, but is a team which has had a female wrestler competing for the last four years in a row. It started with one and in a year it was two girls competing. Now there are three on a team of nine wrestlers.

Riddle likes what he sees.
"The girls season is looking promising," Riddle said."One returning wrestler is a state qualifier. The two new girls look to be doing very well so far."

The Miner wrestlers will have their first meet at the Carbon County Tournament on December 15.
